Robert P. Holding Foundation Endowed Scholarship

On Valentine's Day, representatives of First Citizens Bank presented a gift of $30,000 to the Southwestern Community College Foundation on behalf of the Robert P. Holding Foundation, Inc.

The gift will be used to create an endowed scholarship.

Robert P. Holding was considered instrumental in the founding and development of First Citizens Bank, which was established in 1898. Holding was known for his philanthropy, so the Foundation has followed suit with the scholarship.

"The Foundation believes that community colleges are essential to our communities," said Darren Morton, First Citizens Bank Institutional Consultant. "The Foundation recognizes that education changes lives and it changes generations, and believes that supporting community colleges makes a difference in local communities."

This new scholarship will be added to the nearly 60 scholarships the SCC Foundation has to offer its students.

"I've really enjoyed hearing the stories about the real-life impact the students are making once they graduate from the college," added Craig Letendre, First Citizens Bank Portfolio Strategist.

The scholarship will be available to any student attending SCC.

"The SCC Foundation is grateful for this investment," said Brett Woods, SCC Foundation Director. "The Robert P. Holding Foundation understands the mission of community colleges and how we serve as catalysts for impactful positive change within our communities."

To learn more about how to create an endowed scholarship, contact Woods at 828.339.4241 or b\_woods@southwesterncc.edu.

Creating Customer Loyalty and Repeat Business

Over the years, aspiring and existing entrepreneurs have come to rely on Southwestern Community College's Small Business Center for support, seminars and confidential counseling that are critical to helping their businesses succeed.

There's a new director putting small businesses first for SCC these days.

Marne Harris brings 20 years of combined experience in education, workforce and entrepreneurship to SCC, and she's ensuring that area business owners have access to all the assistance they need. She's already immersed herself in building relationships and collaborating with colleagues across the state.

"Having been an entrepreneur myself, I understand the challenges local small businesses face – and I also recognize the opportunities available today," Harris said. "I am passionate about creating and keeping jobs in our communities, and I'm dedicated to helping small businesses grow and thrive."

One local business owner who has utilized Harris' services is Tony Grimes, who opened Access Acupuncture in November.

His business is located in downtown Sylva.

"I'm not from Sylva originally, so Marne has served as a local guide to the downtown business scene," Grimes said. "She's also connected me with other resources to help."

All of the services provided by SCC's Small Business Center are completely free to small business owners and entrepreneurs in Jackson, Macon, Swain Counties and the Qualla Boundary.

"We're excited to have Marne leading our efforts to support small businesses throughout our service area," said Scott Sutton, Dean of Workforce Continuing Education at Southwestern. "Small businesses are her top priority, and she is ready to be an advocate and champion for all the different types of small businesses, regardless of need or whether they are well established or just starting out."

To learn more about the seminars available – or to schedule a confidential, one-on-one counseling session, contact Harris at 828.339.4426 or m\_harris@SouthwesternCC.edu – or visit www.SouthwesternCC.edu/SBC.
